

Over One Million Miles and Smiles from this Transportation Family

1.8 million miles. In their almost 100 combined years of service to Camden County Schools, Lois English and her daughters Cathy McCarthy and Brenda Rodrigues (not pictured) have driven approximately 1.8 million miles of Camden County roads, delivering children to and from school every day. Ms. English began her career as a bus driver in 1973 and since that time she has driven not only the children of those first students on her route but also many of their grandchildren. In the 1980's, Ms. English's daughters joined the CCS Transportation Team and, combined, these three ladies have driven the equivalent of 4 field trips to the moon and back. While a lot has changed from the time when their busses didn't even have radios, the smiles on the faces of their bus riders are the same now as they were in the beginning. 1.8 million miles is an awfully long way to go and we are truly grateful for their service!
